

TRY, TEST, AND SHARE WHAT WORKS – POWERED BY TEACHERS, FOR TEACHERS

▶ BACKGROUND

WhatWorked Education and the Education Endowment Foundation (EEF) are inviting primary schools to take part in a new research study testing whether teachers can use a simple online platform – WhatWorked Teachers – to run their own mini classroom trials.

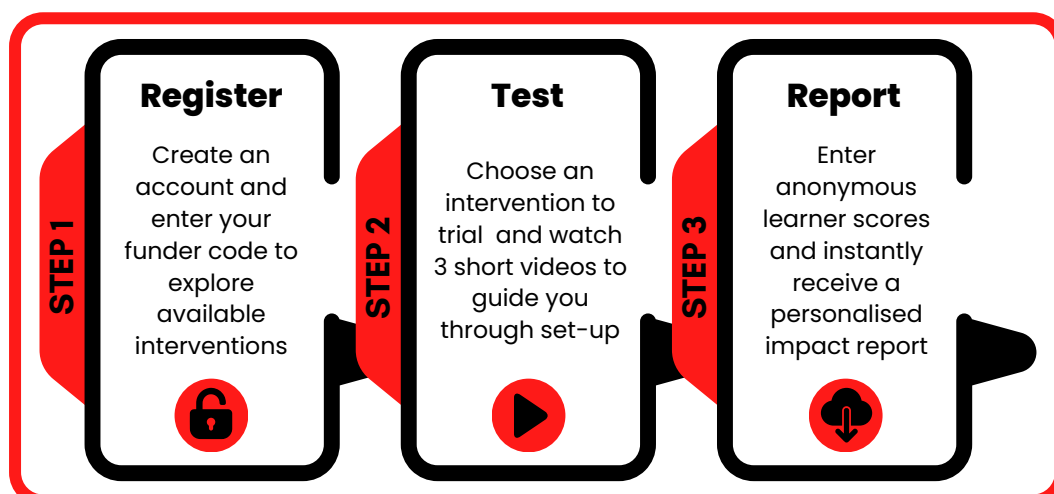

Take part to help shape a new approach to teacher-led research – fast, practical, and built around real classrooms.

▶ WHY GET INVOLVED?

- Trial a 6-week spelling intervention
- (Look, Say, Cover, Write, Check)
- Receive an automated impact report showing outcomes for your pupils
- Build professional confidence in research and evaluation
- Join a national study exploring teacher-led research
- No costs - all materials and platform access provided

▶ HOW DOES IT WORK?

1. Receive a unique access code to create an account on WhatWorked Teachers
2. Watch 3 short 5-minute tutorials and select an intervention
3. The Trial Wizard will guide you through randomisation. You can randomise at class-level (one class receives the intervention, one does not) or pupil-level (a small group of students receive the intervention, e.g. targeted support with a teacher or TA). If you only have one class or a mixed-year-group class, you'll need to choose pupil-level randomisation - this means selecting a small group of pupils within your class to try the intervention while the rest continue with usual teaching. If you have two classes in the same year group, you can choose class-level randomisation - where one class receives the intervention and the other does not.
4. Complete a 20-word spelling pre-test with pupils and enter pre-test scores
5. Run the intervention for 6 weeks (10 minute sessions)
6. Complete a 20-word spelling post-test with pupils and enter post-test scores before October half-term
7. Instantly receive a personalised report showing impact for your pupils
8. Complete a short follow-up survey and teacher interview/focus group
